Hiring Team
Sunbit

Dear Sunbit Team,

This role caught my eye because it sits right at the intersection of strategy, customer experience, and execution—that's exactly the kind of work I've been doing (and loving) for the past several years.

At SpiderOak, I've led strategic programs that span product, engineering, and CX—translating roadmap goals into real outcomes across internal and partner-facing projects. I've owned co-branded launch workstreams, run cross-functional initiatives with risk and compliance, and built onboarding and feedback loops that help customers and partners succeed. I've also rolled out data-informed servicing improvements that increased satisfaction while reducing inbound load—work that sounds very aligned with what you're aiming to do at Sunbit.

The co-branded card partner aspect of this role is particularly interesting to me. I've seen firsthand how alignment between external stakeholders and internal product teams can make or break an initiative, and I know how to keep those threads connected while managing complexity and pace.

I'd love the chance to learn more about what you're building—and share how I could support that work.

Warmly,
Adam Tervort
