Amazon Security

Re: Sr. Technical Program Manager - Red Team & Threat Intelligence

Dear Amazon Security Team,

I'm writing to express my interest in the Sr. TPM role on your Red Team & Threat Intelligence group. For the past decade, I've been leading technical programs at SpiderOak—a secure communications company operating in the space and national security sectors. While there, I helped drive major cross-functional efforts to improve security posture, reduce operational risk, and align teams around incident response and assurance.

What stood out to me about this role is its balance of technical depth and organizational reach. At SpiderOak, I often served as the connective tissue between engineers, customer teams, and compliance—especially in post-Red Team remediation cycles and audit preparation. I'm comfortable in the weeds of vulnerability tracking and escalation protocols, but I also enjoy translating that work for executives who need clarity without spin.

I'm particularly excited by the chance to help Amazon raise its already-high security bar. I've seen how strong internal processes—and smart, empathetic coordination—can make even the most complex security initiatives sustainable. That's the kind of work I'd love to do with your team.

If you think my background fits the mission, I'd welcome the chance to connect.

Warmly,
Adam Tervort
