Hiring Team
ServiceNow

Dear ServiceNow Design & UX Ops Team,

What excites me most about this role is the opportunity to build systems that help designers do their best work—and scale that impact across a truly global org. I've spent my career building internal programs and enablement infrastructure, and in the past few years, I've become especially passionate about AI tooling as a way to scale clarity, collaboration, and creative execution.

At SpiderOak, I've led operations for distributed, cross-functional teams—design included—creating systems for onboarding, documentation, async collaboration, and launch support. I've partnered closely with designers on UI/UX, brand, and customer-facing content, and I've led the rollout of tools that bridge the gap between product vision and team delivery. Increasingly, that work has involved AI agents—whether to prototype internal tools with Cursor, experiment with AI-powered onboarding, or streamline documentation with LLMs. My north star is always the same: how do we build processes that let people focus on what only they can do?

I'd love the chance to support ServiceNow's design team in doing exactly that—by bringing rigor to the day-to-day and foresight to the long term.

Thanks for considering my application. I'd be thrilled to connect.

Warmly,
Adam Tervort
